The Observer

The year 1912 will prove a record breaker for drowning accidents.

The man who can cook and make himself handy around the house might as well do it. He seldom is worth much downtown.

Self righting and self bailing boats are common enough, but add to these features self steering "round the course" and it may be believed for once that there is something new under the sun.

Read the press dispatch from Hamilton:

A most unusual accident occurred here Thursday morning during the motor boat races at the beach. It was in the race for Speedy Aquakqua planes when the Heloise, owned by W. H. Gooderham, of Toronto, furnished the excitement. This boat, the speediest in Canadian waters, was going at a high rate when passing the buoy at station number ten, she got too close and struck the buoy. The impact caused the boat to turn a complete summersault which threw Mr.
Gooderham and his mechanic, J. Foster, out into the water of the bay.
The boat, strange to say, righted itself and raced away round the course.

Do You Know?

That an oil drilling outfit is on the way from California to prospect for oil at Black Diamond?

That there is going to be a lack of farm hands?

That it will take a year for the railways to move the 1912 crop?

That a provincial election may be pulled off this fall?

That two moves is not as bad as a fire?

That Mulai Hafid, Sultan of Morocco, has resigned, and do you care?

That the ground will hardly hold this year's potato crop?

That the hog is the best paying live stock proposition in Alberta?

That the best treatment for burns is pure air without any outward applications whatever?

The Northland

BY IRENE POMEROY SHIELDS

Oh! land of the still and silent,
Oh! land of the Manitou,
Grant me share of thy solitude,
While the sands of Time run slow;
For I am worn with stress of life,
Its clamour and striving's vain,
Ambition's rankling crown of thorns,
And error's cross of pain.

Give me the balm of thy fir trees,
Odors of cedar and pine,
A couch of resinous balsam,
And air like a rare old wine,—
And so shall my soul find healing,
While the harper wind sings low,
Who shares in the peace of nature,
Wins foretaste of heaven below.

Badly Had

It isn't easy living up to a reputation of being a wit, but Jimbina did his best.

Meeting a friend the other morning he said suddenly:

I say, old fellow, have you heard about that young lady who poured a jug of water into her fiance's straw hat?

No, replied his friend, getting ready to hear an excellent little anecdote. Neither have I, said Jimbina, as he began to walk quickly away. It hasn't leaked out yet.

They were decorating the parish church for a certain festival, when the vicar happened to come in. Seeing some tacks lying about the pulpit, he remarked to his daughter, who had apparently been using them—

Don't leave those tacks lying about. What if I stepped on one in the middle of the sermon?

Well, exclaimed Katie, there would be one point you wouldn't linger on.

Misdirected Energy

Short of breath and angry withal, the motorist emerged from beneath his car, and the helpful friend, who was presiding over the oil-can, beamed upon him.

I've just oiled the cylinder, Shirley, old man, remarked the helpful friend with huge satisfaction, and a grin of pleasure on his countenance.

The motorist became angrier and shorter still of breath. His hand went to his head, and he grew red with vexation. For a moment he battled with his temper.

Good heavens, he gurgled eventually, that wasn't the cylinder! It was my ear you were oiling!

A Horse Cigar

A happy thought of the Parisian League for the Protection of Horses is the humane cigar. The league has created a certain brand of cigar said to be a very good one. This cigar is called the "caballo" (Spanish for "horse"), and is decorated with a horse's head in white, and the inscription "Be kind to animals." When a cab driver is seen to be good to his horse, he is presented with one of these cigars occasionally by the agents of the society, and when he is able to bring ten of the bands he receives a pipe cut in the shape of a horse's head. As the cigars are good they are welcome to the men.

Naturally there is no assurance that the cab driver who receives the cigar will always be kind to the horses, but the impulse is given and the cause of gentleness helped.

Horse cabs are a rarity in New York nowadays, but the caballos cigar might make a favorable impression among our truck drivers.—New York Mail.

DOCTORS ADVISE OPERATIONS

Saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Swarthmore, Penn.—"For fifteen years I suffered untold agony, and for two years of nearly two years I had hemorrhages and the doctors told me I would have to undergo an operation, but I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am in good health now. I am all over the Change of Life and cannot praise your Vegetable Compound too highly. Every woman should take it at that time. I recommend it to both old and young for female troubles."—Mrs. EMILY SUMMERHILL, Swarthmore, Pa.

Canadian Woman's Experience: Fort William, Ont.—"I feel as if I could not tell enough about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was weak and tired and I could not rest nights. A friend recommended your Compound and I soon gained health and strength and could not wish to sleep better. I know other women who have taken it for the same purpose and they join me in praising it."—Mrs. Wm. A. BERRY, 631 South Vicker Street, Fort William, Ontario.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, it is not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering in a like manner?

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Bismarck and His Landlord

Prince Bismarck was famous, of course, for his iron will. Austria, Denmark, France, and the German Empire all had occasion to recognize this quality in the great statesman; so also did the landlord in the following anecdote. While in Frankfurt, as Prussian representative in the Diet, Bismarck lived in the house of a particularly sulky and tight-laced man.

One day Bismarck asked that a bell be put in his room, so that he should not be obliged to shout for his servant when he wanted him. The landlord declared curtly that he would go to no such expense—that it was entirely the lodger's affair.

A few days later the inmates of the house were startled by a succession of pistol shots coming from Bismarck's room.

The landlord, imagining all kinds of fearful disaster, rushed to the room from which the shots had come. Trembling with fear, he threw open the door. There, to his astonishment, he beheld Bismarck, quietly reading some papers, with a smoking pistol beside him. Without looking up, Bismarck asked quietly—

What can I do for you?

The quaking landlord managed to stammer—

W-w-what has happened?

Nothing, Bismarck replied, in the same even tone. I was merely calling my servant.

When he returned from a walk that afternoon Bismarck found that a bell had been installed in his room.

Goldsmith Was There

When the late Franklin Fyles visited London he told his travelling companion, as they rose from breakfast the first morning, that he would have to be gone most of the day.

I've got to see a doctor and a lawyer to whom I have cards of introduction, he explained, and there are a couple of dramatic critics here who've written me to call as soon as I reached town. Then I'm going to hunt up Goldsmith's grave down in Temple Gardens—I'd rather see that than any other thing in all England.

A few minutes past ten, Mr. Fyles walked into the hotel again, and to his friend's surprised look, merely said:

Doctor and lawyer and critics all out. Only man at home was Oliver.

A pompous politician, while on his way out to take over the governorship of one of our colonies, was approached on the promenade deck by an innocent-looking fellow-passenger, who, raising his hat, humbly inquired: Would you mind telling me, what K. C. M. G. means at the end of your name, sir? It has puzzled one or two of us.

Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George, of course, said the pompous one, as he inflated his chest.

Oh, said the innocent, I thought it meant "Kindly Call Me Governor."

We hear much of compromise nowadays, said a politician recently, and it is sometimes a good thing. He knew a young man who got married about a year ago, and he and his wife were constantly arguing as to whether they should buy two cycles or an up-to-date motor-cycle. Meeting him one day, he said—

My wife and I wrangled for months, but thank goodness we've compromised at last.

What have you compromised on?

A baby carriage, he proudly answered.

Got the Evidence Upstairs

An Indian judge, when first appointed to his position, was not well acquainted with Hindustani. He was trying a case in which a Hindu was charged with stealing a nighai. The judge did not like to betray his ignorance of what a nighai was, so he said—

Produce the stolen property. The court was held in an upper room, so the usher gasped—

Please, your lordship, it's downstairs.

Then bring it up instantly! sternly ordered the judge.

The official departed, and a minute later a loud bumping was heard, mingled with loud and earnest exhortations. Nearer came the noise, the door was pushed open, and the panting official appeared dragging in the blue bull.

The judge was dumfounded, but only for an instant.

Ah! That will do, said he. It is always best, when possible, for the judge personally to inspect the stolen property. Remove the stolen property, usher.

Served Him Right

He criticized her puddings and found fault with her cake. He wished she'd make such biscuits as his mother used to make. She didn't wash the dishes, and she didn't make a stew.

Nor even mend his stockings, as his mother used to do.

His mother had six children, but by night her work was done.

His wife was always drudging, and yet had only one.

His mother always was well dressed, his wife could be so, too.

If she would only manage, as his mother used to do.

Ah, well, she wasn't perfect, but she tried to do her best.

Until at length she thought her time had come to take a rest;

And so one day, when he the same old harangue went through,

She turned and boxed his ears, as his mother used to do.

She Wanted to Know

One of the "Seeing London," brakes was passing along Piccadilly, and the conductor was pointing out the various objects of interest on the way.

On the left, he yelled through his megaphone, we have Apsley House, the London home of the Duke of Wellington. The mansion with the flower-boxes is the town house of young Lord Topknotch, one of our greatest landed proprietors.

The young American girl on the front seat clutched his arm excitedly.

Oh, say, she gurgled through her nose, do tell—who was it landed him?

THE FARMERS AND THE GRAIN RING

The Duty of the Hour

In previous articles we have fully exposed the true lawlessness of the proposed sample market for grain and the selfish motives of the Winnipeg Grain Ring who are seeking to force the grain powers of the Western Provinces to accept it. The grain men of Winnipeg are not to be trusted. In the past they have always sought to secure unfair advantages at the expense of the farmers, and when they propose to remove at one blow all the legal restrictions that now check their rapacity by the establishment of a sample market, they must be resisted with untiring determination and vigor. The people of the western provinces cannot afford to sacrifice the advantages they have gained over this ring of sharks after years of determined conflict. The farmers should remember that when the sample market is established, all grain passes into the hands of the Winnipeg grain ring the moment it is shipped, to be sold by the grain combine for any price they choose to pay. The people of the West will never submit to such an injustice.

We wish to again to emphasize the fact that the farmers of the West have never asked for a sample market, and will not have it at any price. The present system of grading and shipping grain gives general satisfaction to the producers of the West, and is also satisfactory to the buyers in Great Britain, France, Germany and other European countries as well as the United States and home buyers. The foreign buyer can now buy on credit, sending his orders from his home office, and can be sure of getting just what he has ordered. On the contrary, if he orders from a sample market, he must either send an agent across the Atlantic at great expense (which is paid by the western farmer) or he must trust the Winnipeg grain sharks who will charge him a good fat commission for buying for him on the sample market (which commission must also be paid by the western farmers).

In a recent report of J. T. Lithgow, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Germany, he shows the value of the present grading system alike to the Western Canadian farmer and the German grain buyer. "He says:—Canadian wheat takes a very high place in the estimation of German importers and millers, and the large Hamburg importers express the greatest satisfaction at the grading and at the condition of the wheat on arrival. There is a probability that this year the demand for Canadian wheat will be greatly increased. The establishment of a sample market would greatly injure this prospective trade. It not only destroys it by abolishing the present standard grades. It would be folly not to foster the German market for wheat, particularly in view of the great crop that will be harvested this fall.

We wish again to emphasize the necessity of quick transit from the farmers market to the lake ports. The railway companies are making every endeavor to be ready to handle the immense crop that will be harvested next fall. Last April the C.P.R. ordered for immediate delivery two hundred and fifty locomotives of the largest type and twelve thousand forty-ton freight cars in addition to the engines and cars being built at the shops in Montreal. The Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern Railways have also ordered hundreds of locomotives and thousands of freight cars. But all these additions will scarcely suffice to move the crop of time, particularly when we consider that after the close of navigation on the Lakes there will only be a single line of railway from Port William to Montreal to convey the grain left at the head of the lakes and in country elevators. In the face of these facts the grain sharks in Winnipeg and the Big Interests at their back, with monumental impudence and selfishness want to hold up for twenty-four hours in Winnipeg every car load of wheat grown in the western provinces, thus putting hundreds of cars daily out of commission.

The marketing of grain and all kindred matters are wholly within the province of the farmers, and no steps should be taken in such matters without consulting them. They are the best judges of what is to their interests, and they universally resent the attempt of the selfish grain dealers to saddle them with a system that would take from them the safeguards which they now possess.

An Oil for All Men.—The sailor, the soldier, the fisherman, the lumberman, the out-door laborer and all who are exposed to injury and the elements will find in Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil a true and faithful friend. To ease pain, relieve colds, dress wounds, subdue lumbago and overcome rheumatism, it has no equal. Therefore, it should have a place in all home medicines and those taken on a journey.

Charles the XII of Sweden had an old-fashioned way of having food "cooked without coal or gas." If for roasting and stuffed with butter. A piece of hot steel, not red hot, was inserted into its belly. It was then shut up in a tin box, which was wrapped in a woolen cloth and strapped on a soldier's back. In a few hours, when the march came to an end it was found sufficiently cooked. The Tartars were not so fastidious. They cooked their meat while galloping on horseback by using it as a saddle. This was a much less expensive method than that provided by the fireless cooker of today.

He was the happy father of a very pretty and bright little girl of twelve. Dad, she said to him, one evening, while he was reading the paper, every morning when I go to school the boys catch hold of me and kiss me. But, Ethel, he said, why don't you run away from them? Well, dad, if I did, perhaps they wouldn't chase me. He went on reading.

MOONEY'S BISCUITS

ONE TIRED WOMAN AND ONE LITTLE OVEN

You have probably been there yourself—perhaps are right now.

Bright women all over Canada are getting away from this. They welcome MOONEY'S BISCUITS as a most acceptable substitute for their own bread and biscuits.

MOONEY'S PERFECTION SODA BISCUITS

are the crispest, creamiest crackers made. Better still, they are baked in Winnipeg; right at your very door. They come to you fresh as the product of your own oven.

You can have them in air-tight packages or sealed tins as you prefer.

LET MOONEY DO IT

Ready to Oblige

The lady of decided notions and political leanings went to consult her solicitor.

Good morning, Mrs. Tawker, said the man of law. This is a real pleasure! Take this easy chair. Let me lower the window-blind to keep the sun out of your eyes. Will you have a footstool? Do you feel the draught from that window?

The woman of decided, etc., eyed him coldly.

One moment, please, she commanded sternly. When I come to you I want to talk business with you as man to man. Treat me like you would a man.

The lawyer sank into his chair, and put his feet on the table.

Right-o, he said breezily. Will you have a cigar, Polly?

Gentlemen—I have used MINARD'S LINIMENT on my vessel and in my family for years, and for the every day ills and accidents of life I consider it has no equal.

Lucid Explanation

A foreigner on a London tram-car, not satisfied with the rate of progress said to the conductor—

Pardon, m'sieur, but see car—he run so slow, and why, if you please? Does it not so?

Yes, replied the conductor, we can't help it, though. You see the car ahead is behind.

The foreigner's eyes opened wide. Would you mind saying him again? as asked apologetically. I say, replied the conductor, louder than before, that the car ahead is behind. See?

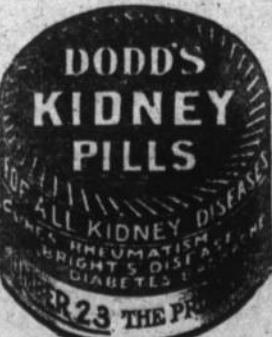

The foreigner returned to his seat. See car-r ahead he sees behind. Most wonderful! Most astonishing! See this country! I do not understand but some day perhaps I will.

Benevolent Party—Don't you think fishing is a very cruel sport?

Angler—Cruel? Well I should say so. I've sat here three days and not had a bite, been nearly eaten up by gnats and stung by two wasps, lost my pocket knife in the river and the sun has taken all the skin off the back of my neck.

"I Want You to Have My New Portable Granary"

"I have a money-saving invention—handy granaries to allow field threshing over your farm. Move them about each year. You save long hauls at harvest time. In spring you scatter small straw stacks—no burning of straw."

These granaries come in compact bundles. A boy can set up and bolt one together in a few hours. Four padlocks protect the grain. Separator delivery into a spout on the side or into roof manhole—saves work during threshing. Your grain is protected from vermin, wet and thieves. Sell it when you are ready, loading direct from the granary into your wagon, or bagging it. No musty or heated grain. Get my granary and be independent of elevators for selling. Sell at the highest price, no matter how long you store your grain. The Pedlar Granary protects you.

Write me for my booklet. It shows how profitable my Granary is even on a single quarter-section farm. Use it for 1912. The Book Tells of Big Money for You.

Minard's Liniment Cures Garget in Cows

A professor one day objected to a candidate for graduation (who was a native of Ceylon) on the ground of false spelling. Why, he said, he actually spelt exceedingly with one e. Oh, replied the candidate's supporter, you should remember that he came from the land of the Cingalese! The joke saved the candidate.

When people who write for fashion publications, says a Vienna letter, have nothing more to say about queer shaped hats, grotesque skirts and other equally important matters, they tell us that black is going out and white is to be the mourning color—if white may be so termed. This fashion news item may be looked for several times a year, but black, sombre black, still maintains its place. The band on the sleeve has done much to save money for those who still wish to wear a badge of mourning, but the sleeve band will never be white. The greater display of mourning is made with stationery, the size of the cards and the depth of the black borders indicating—what? There will be real mourning among the stationers when one may announce the death of a beloved one or tell of his good qualities on paper which is pure white.

The Dog in Politics
An Italian paper has been collecting instances where dogs were used to influence politics or express the political feelings of their owners. We are told that in 1894, when bilingual teaching was imposed on Istria, dogs were painted black in sign of mourning; in 1897 a candidate for the town council of Milan decorated his Newfoundland with a scroll inscribed, "Vote for the Socialist." The following year this was imitated in London, where numbers of dogs wore mantles on which was written, Vote for Chamberlain, or Vote for the Socialist. It is also said that in 1903 on the reception of the news that the Boer War was ended, the streets were enlivened by the apparition of dogs wearing the Union Jack and others draped with whisky. How the nature of the tattle was determined by the Italian observers is not stated.

THE GERMAN MENACE

WINSTON CHURCHILL CRITICIZED BY LORD BERESFORD

Churchill's Administration is Decried to be a Failure—That the Only Naval Alliance Should be with the Overseas Dominions, is the Opinion of Beresford.

London, England.—Lord Charles Beresford, speaking at Evesham recently had many unkind things to say of Winston Churchill, whom he characterized as the most eccentric individual who had ever been entrusted with the naval executive.

He has occupied the position eight months and proved a miserable failure.

He speaks of looking at things with a motion eye, but the first necessity is to see straight.

With unaccountable insolence, Winston Churchill took charge of the recent Spithead naval review, which resulted in chaotic disorganization.

The German menace was in his opinion so serious that to withdraw the whole fleet to protect the heart of the Empire, would mean leaving one armoured cruiser only responsible for the Mediterranean.

We cannot present a fight, added Lord Charles, and shall not be ready for some time to come.

Vigorously opposing a naval alliance with a foreign country, he urged that the Empire defend its own with its own ships only, and that the alliance we should desire is the one with the overseas Dominions. He concluded that he did not fear invasion but starvation. He would always have granaries in the country with three or four points for the storage of food.

We have reduced our fleet, we have reduced our army, while other nations are forging ahead by leaps and bounds. I say stop fooling the people and tell them the truth.

LABOR TROUBLES IN MINES

Labor Department of Dominion Government to Appoint Board of Investigation

Ottawa.—Difficulties have arisen between the management of several mines at South Porcupine and their men and the labor department has been asked and has consented to establish a board of investigation. The mines concerned are the Porcupine, McIntyre, Jupiter, Plenaum and McEneaney companies. In the case of the McIntyre Company forty men are directly affected and that of the others 225, although a much larger number of persons is indirectly affected. The men claim that wages have been reduced. The companies contend that their proposed schedule of wages is identical with that of the Dome and Hollinger mines the large producers of the district, and that hitherto they have been working under pressure and paying for development work. The companies originally intended to put the new schedule in force August 1, but as a result of communications from the department of labor they have postponed the date of the schedule going into effect till September 1, thereby giving the board of investigation time to operate.

Krupp Co. Generous

Essen, Germany.—In honor of the centenary of the great Krupp works at Essen, the company has donated $3,500,000 to be distributed as gratuities to the 65,000 workmen as well as funds for civilians of Essen and for the army and navy.

Empress of Britain Sails

Quebec.—The Empress of Britain has sailed for England with her cargo and complete crew. The report that many of the crew would not go, fearing that the ship was not so worthy, proved to be quite false, for her full crew left Quebec on the Empress.

Sportswoman to Marry Marquis

London.—An international engagement of international interest is announced—that of Miss Nina Martinez de Hoz to the Marquis of Salamanca, son of the Countess de Los Llanos, in waiting on Queen Ena of Spain.

Miss de Hoz is English born and a great favorite in English sporting circles, where her beauty and grace attract general admiration. She is rather tall and dark with exceptionally handsome eyes, in which she resembles her father, Senor Don Miguel Martinez de Hoz, who is a very distinguished looking man. She also resembles him in that she is an expert horsewoman and is never happier than when driving her father's well known horse coach.

Senor de Hoz is enormously wealthy, deriving a large income from his extensive Argentine estates, where he breeds pedigree horses. He has done much towards improving the standard of South American cattle and has won hundreds of prizes, besides carrying off many of the coveted trophies on the English turf with horses bred on his own estates. Indeed all the horses in his English stud come from his South American stock farm.

Food Condemned in Edmonton

Edmonton.—Nearly twenty tons of foodstuffs were condemned in this city in July according to the report of the food inspector of the Health Department.

All kinds of foods were found unfit for consumption, but greatest quantities that were condemned were vegetables and canned goods.

Agricultural Special in Alberta

Edmonton.—According to an announcement of the Canadian Pacific Railway an agricultural special train similar to that which recently completed a trip through Manitoba, will be run in Alberta as soon as arrangements can be made.

UNIFORMITY OF STATISTICS

Prof. Short Enlists Co-operation of Western Provinces Save Alberta—Victoria, B.C.—Professor Adam Shortt, who is touring the West as commissioner for the Dominion government, was successful in enlisting the hearty co-operation of the British Columbia government in the project to provide a uniformity of statistics in every branch of Canadian development.

The object of the commission, of which Richard Grigg is the other member, is to obtain complete records of production and distribution of commodities, their volume, value and points of origin, the destination of imports and exports and the cost of transportation.

Special attention will be paid to the statistics of interprovincial trade. Prof. Shortt has now secured the co-operation of the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia governments and on his way back he will visit Edmonton and interview Premier Sifton on Alberta's attitude. Mr. Grigg is engaged in interviewing the provincial governments in the East and the commission will report the results of its findings to Hon. Geo. E. Foster, during September and will outline an elaborate scheme of collecting statistics.

CANADA AND PRIVY COUNCIL

Canada Should Have Representative

Feeling in England
St. John, N.B.—That there should be a Canadian representative on the privy council is the feeling in England, says W. H. Trueman, barrister of Winnipeg, who arrived in St. John after arguing a case on the other side. It is planned, Mr. Trueman added, to change the constitution of the Judicial committee to have a Canadian added to its membership and Lord Haldane is sounding prominent Canadians to ascertain their views as to what steps can be taken to make the committee acceptable to Canadians and to overcome any disposition to abolish Canadian appeals to the committee.

MASTERY OF THE SEA

Debate Says France and Russia Depend on English Fleet in Event of War

Paris.—The newspaper Debats says of M. Poincare's visit to Russia, that, by extending the Russo-French military convention of 1892 to the navies of the two countries, Russia and France are seeking to prevent a continental coalition wresting the mastery of the seas from Britain as it is on this that the efficiency of Britain's aid to her continental allies depends in time of war. The Vienna Reichpost says that the proposed Russo-French convention refers to the Black Sea fleet to eventual action in the eastern Mediterranean. Britain appears to be reconciled to the fact that other powers have established a flank at Suez. If this is so Austria must have a naval base in the Aegean Sea.

BEST RESULTS FROM SOIL

Series of Demonstrations to be Carried on by Dominion Government

Ottawa.—With the object of demonstrating to the farmers of the Dominion the most economical manner of getting the best results from the soil the commission of conservation has chosen a number of farms throughout the various provinces for illustration purposes. The commission has chosen each case chosen farms whose owners agree to be guided by the agricultural experts provided. These experts are F. C. Munick, the commission's agricultural expert, and John Fixter, formerly a farm superintendent of McDonald College. The farms for demonstration purposes have already been chosen in the eastern provinces and both Mr. Munick and Mr. Fixter are now in the west arranging for farms for similar purposes in the prairie provinces. In Ontario there are eight farms, in Quebec six and in New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia three each.

Physicians May Practice Anywhere

Ottawa.—Medical reciprocity throughout Canada is now assured as a result of all the provinces having Canada Medical Act. The act was passed in 1911, after many years of agitation and the overcoming of much opposition. Briefly stated the act provides for a Dominion medical council and enables any physician certified by it to practice in any province of the Dominion. Heretofore there have been separate provincial councils and a doctor in Quebec, for instance, could not practise in Ontario without passing a separate examination. The new council is to be composed of three members residing in different provinces, to be appointed by the Dominion government, two representing each province, one from each university or medical school having an arrangement with a university for conferring degrees in medicine, and three representing the homeopathic. The term of office will be four years. Candidates for examination may elect to be examined in either English or French.

London.—The Daily Chronicle says that the question of an official visit of the British cabinet to Canada stands over until Premier Borden's return. If this be true it cannot take place until September at the earliest.

Mikado's Funeral on September 13

Tokyo.—The late Mikado's funeral ceremonies will be held here on the night of September 13, it is announced. He will be buried at Kioto the next night.

TRADE WITH AUSTRALIA GROWS

Statement for 1911 Shows Increase of 300,000—Balance in Favor of Dominion

Ottawa.—In view of the negotiations for closer trade relations with Australia which are in progress, the statement of the trade between Canada and the Commonwealth for 1911, which has just been received by the department of trade and commerce, is of considerable interest. The total trade between the two countries for 1911 showed an increase over 1910 of no less than $300,000. The balance of trade was overwhelmingly in favor of Canada. The Australian imports from Canada amount to $844,235, and the Australian exports to Canada $118,284. Agricultural implements were the largest single item under the heading of imports. Canada shipped to Australia over $1,000,000 worth of machinery, nearly $2,000,000 worth of canned fish was sent to Australia, which was a decrease of over $150,000 in 1910. Printing paper to the value of over $600,000 was shipped to Australia from Canada, an item also showing a decrease. There was a big increase in timber shipments, the total amount for 1911 being over $800,000. There is a growing trade in motors to Australia. The total last year being some $300,000. The other principal exports to Australia included liquors, boots and shoes, metal manufacturers, apples and bicycles.

The bulk of imports of Canada from Australia are comprised in the items of frozen mutton, lamb and other meats, with hides and skins. Butter declined by $68,000, caused by higher prices ruling in Australia and through New Zealand enjoying a preference of one cent per pound. In vegetable products, Victorian onions were responsible for over $200,000. The wheat crop of the Commonwealth showed a decrease for the season of 1911 of 25,565,345 bushels, as compared with the present season. The surplus available for export is estimated at 44,000,000 bushels, of which probably 21,000,000 bushels has already been shipped.

OTTAWA TYPHOID EPIDEMIC

Parliament Will Likely Pass a Bill Dealing With Pollution of Lakes and Rivers

Ottawa.—With the occurrence of a typhoid epidemic it is likely that this coming session of parliament will pass a bill dealing with the pollution of lakes and rivers. Last session bills seeking to prevent by law the pollution of waters were introduced in the Senate and Commons respectively, by Senator Belcourt and G. H. Bradbury, of Selkirk, but an opportunity was not presented for their consideration.

Germany's Fastest Cruiser

Danzig, Germany.—The German cruiser Goeben, which was launched at Hamburg last year has undergone a speed trial over a measured mile and is reported to have developed a speed of 22 knots. At her previous trial in May she went 30 knots. She is the fastest ship in the German navy.

THE MARKET REPORT

Weekly Grain Letter Supplied by Thompson, Sons & Co., Grain Merchants, Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, July 31.—The spring wheat crops of the United States and Canada continue to be the leading factors in determining wheat values the world over. Conditions have changed very little from where they were a week ago, and as a result prices for the new crop futures show no marked variation. During the early days of the week markets were stronger on numerous black rust reports from the Lokotas but on investigation it was found these only applied to very small areas and with improved weather the trade felt little anxiety. While the reports considered as a whole still indicate a most liberal yield for the three North-West States there is creeping into the news of the day a change to a less unanimous expression of the uniform excellence of the crop. There is evidence of some blight as well as black rust impairment. The recent large estimates of production were based on very large liberal per acre returns and these now seem too optimistic rather than conservative. There is, as a result of the black rust infection, an important and more or less critical ten days ahead of the crop. Practically no rust has been found in the Canadian crop and the past three days have been favorable for filling. There are many complaints, however, regarding hail damage, especially in Southern Manitoba, Greena, Altona and Plum Coulee districts report fully 50 per cent loss from Friday and Saturday's storms. Early sown grain and crop on stubble is not satisfactory so that even with best of weather from now on only an average crop can be expected. European prospects are not so favorable as they were some time ago, as the harvest shows actual yields in variable quality and quantity in some countries. This is the case in France, Hungary, Roumania, Italy, and parts of Russia. France reports the yield is below expectations, as do Hungary and Roumania. The crop outlook for Russia is not brilliant, though private cables claim a larger crop than last year but the 1911 crop of that year was much smaller than the average. European markets have been generally stronger, being influenced by decreasing supplies and smaller exports from the different countries. On the sharp break European importers have been purchasers of both wheat and flour in the United States and Canadian markets. Bradstreet's world's visible supply shows a decrease of 1,750,000 bus. during the past week, the total now being 109,475,000 bus., compared to 111,221,000 bus. last week, and 126,688,000 bus. a year ago. World's shipments were less than last week and somewhat smaller than a

H. B. RAILWAY TENDERS

TENDERS FOR CONSTRUCTION TO BE LET AT ONCE

Hon. Frank Cochrane Announces that the Contract for the Building of the H.B. Road to Tidewater will be Let in September, and work will be Proceeded with this Fall

Winnipeg.—Tenders are to be let at once for the building of the Hudson Bay Railroad to Tidewater. The contract will be let in September and the work will be rushed to completion. Announcement to this effect was made by Hon. Frank Cochrane at Winnipeg.

The minister of railways said that the object in calling for tenders now was to secure active construction which opens this fall and winter.

I am leaving for the Bay Saturday morning, said Mr. Cochrane. The exact date at which I will get back to Eastern Canada cannot be determined but it will be early in September. If I should wait until my return from the Bay to call for tenders and then give a month for the returns to come in the contracts would be let very late in the year. The contractors can go to work on the project which will be available here and can submit figures on both routes to the bay. When I return a decision will be reached with reference to the route and the contracts will be let in accordance with this decision. It seems an unusual manner in which to proceed but it is essential that action of this kind should be taken. It is the object of the government to build and complete the line at the earliest possible moment and for this reason I am making the arrangement that the contract may be let soon after my return to Ottawa.

Tenders for the building of the dump all the way to the Bay will be called immediately.

No Market for Their Produce

Chatham, Ont.—According to reports that have reached this city much discontent exists among British farmers settled upon the intensification farming lands in Tilbury last spring. The settlers claim that promises of the land company that a co-operative organization would be formed for handling, vegetables and fruit have been unfulfilled and, although they have railway facilities for shipping there is no available market for their produce. As a result they have been compelled to sell at low prices. Some farmers threaten to return to England this fall. Litigation is talked of, while others have decided to go West.

Furthest Point North

Edmonton, Alta.—Gen. Supt. Wilcox, of the C.N.R., says that all of the construction work on the Athabasca Lardie branch is practically completed and as permission has been secured from the Railway Commission the company will be ready to give a regular passenger and freight service to the furthest railroad point north.

Montreal.—While immigrants from Europe are continually passing through Montreal, the fact that the western movement is strong, even in Quebec province, was shown at the Windsor station when one of the C.P.R. homeseekers' excursions required practically an extra train to be run as a second section to the Imperial Limited. There were about two hundred in the party, which was exclusively from the province of Quebec, and most of them were bound for various points in Saskatchewan and Alberta. While they all had certificates entitling them to return within the next month or two, it was considered by the C.P.R. officials that few of them would be used as most of the men were accompanied by wives and children.

All Coming West

Montreal.—While immigrants from Europe are continually passing through Montreal, the fact that the western movement is strong, even in Quebec province, was shown at the Windsor station when one of the C.P.R. homeseekers' excursions required practically an extra train to be run as a second section to the Imperial Limited. GEOLOGISTS FOR TORONTO

World's Convention Will be Held in Queen City Next Summer

Ottawa.—The geological department here is already making arrangements for the world's convention of geological experts, which may be held at Toronto next summer. The convention will be under the auspices of the Dominion government. G. A. Young, of the geological department is now travelling through the various provinces in connection with this matter. Following the convention at Toronto, it is planned that those in attendance divide into two groups, one going to the western, and the other to the maritime provinces.

Decline Carnegie's Offer

Edmonton.—It is reported that the Carnegie library it will not be the library board that is to be thanked. That organization has washed its hands of the whole negotiations with the ironmaster and placed the disposal of his proffered $60,000 at the discretion of Commissioner Harrison. The whole trouble is that Carnegie has based his offer on the recent Dominion census of some 23,000, while the recent civic census gives Edmonton 55,385. The library board has recommended that Carnegie's gold be refused with thanks and that the citizens erect a much more pretentious institution themselves.

Russia Consents to Sign Agreement

Paris.—The Echo de Paris says that Russia has consented to sign an agreement with France binding herself not to treat with Germany on any European question without having previously discussed it and come to an agreement with France.

Double Skine for Big Liners in Future

Belfast.—The White Star company has issued orders that the third steamer of the Olympic class under construction here shall be provided with a double skin, rising well above the water line. This is in accordance with the suggestion in the Mersey report.

ODDFELLOWS GATHERING

Sovereign Grand Lodge to Meet in Winnipeg on Sept. 14

Winnipeg.—Western Canada will be honored this year by having the Sovereign Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., meet in Winnipeg, during the week of September 14th. This will be the third occasion since the institution of this great legislative body that the meetings have been held under the Union Jack. In 1885 and 1895, the sessions took place in Toronto. This gathering is admittedly the largest convention held in the world when representatives and visitors from every State in the Union and every Province in the Dominion and from over the Seas meet, legislation affecting over 2,000,000 men and women being discussed.

The Winnipeg Committee have been at work for nearly two years preparing and at the present time the finishing touches for the monster gathering entertainment are being added. The railroads have announced an exceptionally low rate of single fare plus 25c. (convention plan) for the round trip. The going fares being September 7—12 return limit October 31st. From points within a radius of 200 miles special excursion rates will be effective and trains will be run to Winnipeg for the Parade Day, September 18. This parade will move through the city via Broadway, Main to Higgins, Higgins to Portage, to Kennedy street. The Committee estimate a parade strength of from 12,000 to 15,000. The prize list for Degree Contests is the largest ever given, upwards of $10,000 in cash being offered. Entries close September 1st.

The estimated cost ($20,000) for entertainment has been contributed solely by the Odd Fellows of Western Canada.

The Sovereign Grand Lodge met in Indianapolis last year and it was estimated that upwards of 100,000 people were drawn to that city. While the arrangements were good there, the Winnipeggers feel that they will go to the Indianapolis brethren one better.

His Honor Judge Myers is chairman and B. D. Deering, Grand Secretary of Manitoba is Secretary. All requests for information will be promptly replied to by addressing B. D. Deering, Odd Fellows Temple, Kennedy street, Winnipeg.

Detection of Icebergs by Instrument

Ottawa.—In a few days the scientific world will have known the result of experiments which Professor Barnes has been making in the Straits of Belle Isle with his invention for the detection of icebergs by ocean going steamers. Ever since the announcement of the claim of Professor Barnes the world has awaited expectantly the result of his experiments. For the past month Professor Barnes has been cruising in the Straits of Belle Isle on board the government steamer Montcalm, which has been placed at his disposal and a message received by the deputy minister of marine and fisheries conveys the information that several very successful tests have been made. The Montcalm will arrive at Sydney, N.S., in a few days and Professor Barnes will submit a report to the government.

This is what He wanted, that He might do more for her than she had expected. She had already received what she came for and expected, but He loves to do exceeding abundantly above all we can ask or think (Eph. iii, 20). She had no thought that He would speak to her personally much less call her daughter. She could never forget those words from His lips, "Daughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace," (verse 34, Luke viii, 48; Matt. ix, 22). This "good comfort" is just His good cheer of Matt. ix, 23; Luke viii, 33. Had she not publicly confessed her healing by His power she would not only have missed this special blessing, but would have occasion to upbraid herself because she had not done so. There is much blessing in obeying (Rom. x, 9). "Thou shalt confess with thy mouth to the Lord Jesus." In last lesson the healed demoniac was sent home to tell his friends how great things the Lord had done for him, and the command stands to declare His doings among the people (Isa. xli, 4).

What about the anxious father this time and the only daughter, whom he left dying? The incident we have been dwelling upon probably took much less time than we have to write it, but there are times when minutes seem very long, and it may have been too late. Though He tarries, we must wait for Him and be patient (Job. x, 36, 37; Heb. ii, 3, 4). While He still talked to the woman tidings came from the ruler's house that the little girl was dead, which was as soon as Jesus heard He said to Jairus, "Be not afraid, only believe" (verse 36). Reaching the house, He said to the waiting people: "Why make ye this ado? The damsel is not dead, but sleepeth." And taking only Peter, James and John, and the little maid's father and mother (Luke vii, 52). He went in where she was and took her hand and said, "Damsel, I say unto thee, arise." Immediately she arose and walked, and He commanded that something should be given her to eat (42). There was no further laughing to scorn (46) but a great astonishment for they had never seen anything like this. This manner of man was not ordinary, a man full of compassion for all sick and suffering and with the power to heal the otherwise incurable and to raise the dead—truly a man and as truly God, now our great High Priest at the right hand of the Father, knowing us, loving us, caring for us and still saying the same words, "Be of good cheer, be not afraid, only believe."

NEW GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS

W. H. White, British Landscape Architect, to Arrive in Ottawa Next Week

Ottawa.—W. H. White, the British landscape architect, whom Premier Borden secured in London to survey the Wellington site, upon which will be erected the new government departmental buildings, and to report upon the best manner of laying out the grounds and buildings so as to secure every bit of available floor space will arrive in Ottawa some time next week.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

LESSON VII.—THIRD QUARTER FOR AUG. 18, 1912

Text of the Lesson, Mark. v, 21-43

Memory Verses, 41, 42—Golden Text, Mark v, 41—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns

At the request of the people of Gadara He left their coasts and re-crossed the sea to His own city, Capernaum, and the people received Him gladly, for they were all waiting for Him. There are many places today, chiefly in so called Christendom, where He is not wanted as the opposer of Satan and his wives, for such that is called church work and much preaching is really not for Christ, but against Him, while there are many others longing to hear of Him. I have just read of one valley in Mr. Beulah's territory in China where a thousand people are crying loudly for a teacher and many leading families have put away their idols. May the Lord direct us to the open doors and make us willing and obedient. Troubles come to the rich as well as the poor, the devil is the oppressor of all classes, and in this lesson we see a rich man, a ruler and a poor woman, both in great trouble, a little girl twelve years developing and a poor woman twelve years growing weaker and both seemingly in hopeless condition as far as this life goes. Both find deliverance at the feet of Jesus. Jairus, the ruler of the synagogue, fell at His feet and besought Him greatly for his only daughter, who was at the point of death, that He would come and lay His hands on her and heal her.

The sick woman had spent all her living upon physicians, had suffered much and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse. She had such faith in Him, no doubt by hearing of His wondrous works, that she believed if she could only touch the hem of His garment she would be healed. Jesus arose to go with Jairus, His disciples followed and much people thronged Him. It was in this throng that the sick woman came and succeeded in touching the border of His garment and was immediately healed. Jesus, knowing that some one had believably touched him, turned about and said, "Who touched my clothes?" Peter and the other disciples said in surprise, "Master, the multitude throng and press thee." But He insisted that some one had touched Him in a special manner and that virtue had gone out of Him. It is just so still—many meet to worship Him and few touch Him as this woman did. Many know about Him, but comparatively few know Him in the sense of receiving power from Him for themselves or others.

When the woman saw that what she had done was known to Him she fell down before Him and declared unto Him before all the people why she had touched Him and how she was healed immediately (Luke viii, 47). This is what He wanted, that He might do more for her than she had expected. She had already received what she came for and expected, but He loves to do exceeding abundantly above all we can ask or think (Eph. iii, 20). She had no thought that He would speak to her personally much less call her daughter. She could never forget those words from His lips, "Daughter, be of good comfort, thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace," (verse 34, Luke viii, 48; Matt. ix, 22). This "good comfort" is just His good cheer of Matt. ix, 23; Luke viii, 33. Had she not publicly confessed her healing by His power she would not only have missed this special blessing, but would have occasion to upbraid herself because she had not done so. There is much blessing in obeying (Rom. x, 9). "Thou shalt confess with thy mouth to the Lord Jesus." In last lesson the healed demoniac was sent home to tell his friends how great things the Lord had done for him, and the command stands to declare His doings among the people (Isa. xli, 4).

What about the anxious father this time and the only daughter, whom he left dying? The incident we have been dwelling upon probably took much less time than we have to write it, but there are times when minutes seem very long, and it may have been too late. Though He tarries, we must wait for Him and be patient (Job. x, 36, 37; Heb. ii, 3, 4). Cookery
Points

Damen Cake.

Cream three-quarters of a cupful of butter with one cupful and a half of brown sugar. Add two eggs and a cupful of sour cream in which half a teaspoonful of soda has been dissolved. Sift three cupfuls of flour with a teaspoonful of baking powder, two level teaspoonfuls of cinnamon, half a teaspoonful of cloves and half a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg. Stir the other mixture into these dry ingredients, and when a smooth batter has been formed mix with a paste previously prepared by melting a square of chocolate and then mixing it with a quarter of a cupful of light brown sugar and a quarter of a cupful of hot water. Cook this mixture till it is smooth before adding it to the batter. Just before putting the batter into the pans add a cupful of chopped nuts and fruit—almonds, raisins, citron and so forth, according to the richness desired. This cake may be used as a layer cake or in a shallow loaf form. It does not need a rich frosting, the batter being rich. Creamy sour milk may be used instead of sour cream, but it is wise to add a little extra butter. The almonds should, of course, be blanched, and cut in thin strips and the citron into thin shavings.

Mook Game.

Cut some slices of beefsteak into pieces half an inch thick and square. Lay a piece of raw bacon on each and dredge well with flour. Roll up the beef and skewer it in position. Melt some dripping in a saucepan, put in the meat and brown nicely, then add a finely chopped onion, half a teaspoonful of capers, a wineglassful of vinegar and the same quantity of stock. Cover and stew all together very slowly till tender.

Place the meat on a hot dish. Strain the gravy, thicken it with browned flour. Season with pepper and salt and a tablespoonful of red currant jelly. Pour the gravy over and around the meat and garnish with sippets of toast and pieces of red currant jelly.

Angels' Food Cake.

Take the whites of ten eggs, one cupful of flour, one and a half cupfuls of sugar and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Sift the sugar four times, with a teaspoonful of cream of tartar added also a pinch of salt. Beat the eggs until light and dry and add the sugar lightly, then the flour and vanilla. The secret of success is in the mixing and baking. Put together in the order given. Do not use a spoon or beat hard. Beat the eggs with a wire egg beater and use the beater to mix the cake. Bake in ungreased angels' cake pan for forty minutes to one hour. Let the cake cool in an inverted position before removing from the pan. The oven must be a moderate one.

Compote of Apples.

Large and rather tart apples are the best for this purpose. They should be pared and cored and cut into equal parts. Make a syrup with half a pound of lump sugar and a wineglassful of sherry and another of water. Bring it to boiling point.

Drop the apples into this and cook them till perfectly tender, but do not let them break. Lift them out on a plate as soon as done.

When all the apples are cooked boil the syrup a little longer to reduce it and deepen the color by the addition of a few drops of cochineal. Then pour over the apples and serve in a glass dish.

French Cucumber Salad.

Take four medium sized fresh cucumbers, half a cupful of sweet cream, a quarter of a cupful of vinegar and two tablespoonfuls of salt.

Peel the cucumbers and slice thin layers lengthwise until the seeds are reached. Place a layer of cucumber slices in a dish, then sprinkle with a layer of salt. Repeat until all sliced cucumbers are used. Allow to stand several hours on the ice. When ready to use remove cucumbers from the liquid, spread on towel and wipe dry. Place in a bowl and add, alternately, cream and vinegar. Serve on bed of lettuce or cress.

Curry Soup.

Peel and slice three apples and three onions. The onions should be sliced from the top to the bottom. Place them in a saucepan with two ounces of dripping and a tablespoonful of curry powder and fry gently without discoloring for about half an hour.

Stir occasionally. Pour in two quarts of plain or fish stock and cook for half an hour. Add enough flour to thicken the soup and boil for three minutes. Season with pepper, salt and a dash of lemon juice and serve with boiled rice.

Beetroot Sauce.

Wash and boil a couple of fair sized beets until they are tender, then remove the skins and cut them in slices. Dissolve half an ounce of butter, mix with it a desiccated spoonful of flour and stir in a large teaspoonful of this stock or water, adding a little vinegar and pepper and salt.

Boil first, then lay in the slices and salt, root, cover the stewpan closely and stew gently for an hour.

Four carefully into a hot dish and serve at once.

TRAVELING SUITS.

Chinese Shantung a Satisfactory Material to Use.

It is not as easy to choose a costume for traveling in summer as in winter. Even with the freshest of linens at the start one is apt to look soiled and dusty in a short while, and serges are too warm unless one is going instantly to a cool climate. Taffetas are not especially serviceable, and satin is hot, so one must choose with thought and after much looking around.

So far the genuine Chinese weave of shantung has proved most satisfactory for traveling. Its indefinite tan tones do not show soil easily, and those who have tried it out on trips of long duration have found that it was worth the money they put into it.

A slim, short skirt of this, with one of the new sack-coats that have a slight fullness at the back of the waist line held under a short belt, is a good model to select. The skirt should have a habit back or one side plait, but it should avoid the wide-box plait or the loose panel. It is a good thing to remember just here that these additions should not be put on the back of a skirt when it is made of a fabric that easily wrinkles.

The skirt which buttons down the front should be high waisted, and the four inch hem should be stitched with one row of self colored silk at the top. The coat, in addition to its negligee back, should be open to the waist line, have wide revers and collar and long sleeves that are finished with two inch turnover cuffs held at the back with link buttons.

A JAPANESE ROOM.

Charming Ways of Using Souvenirs From Mikado's Land.

A collector of Japanese prints and embroideries who found that she had amassed several very beautiful specimens of the mikado's land asked an expert how she should furnish a room in which they were to play a prominent part.

"The room is practically furnished already," said the authority interrogated. "In fact, the fewer pieces of furniture you have in it the better you will be pleased with the result."

"Have black walls. What would be more beautiful as a background for the glorious splashes of blue water, the radiant sunsets and the prints crowded with figures in monotone which you have here?"

"Screens you must have in black wood frames, for some of your embroideries will make exquisite panels, and other pieces can be let into the wall, so that you may sit near them and admire the perfection of design and coloring you have secured."

"I would have a black carpet so that no alien color scheme may creep into your room, and, besides that, you yourself will radiate color, for you will have some of the silks you have brought home made into gowns and will wear them always in this particular apartment. Any other type of toilet would look bahal in it."

"Let there be unobtrusive chairs, divan, tables, and when tea is served use the Japanese china you have among your treasures."

Cleaning Windows.

For cleaning windows use ammonia in the proportion of one tablespoonful to one gallon of water or whiting mixed with cold water to a paste about as thick as cream. But the work can be performed by using clean water and two chamols leathers, one for washing the glass and the other for polishing. The latter should be kept dry and soft.

See that the wash leathers are quite clean and do not make the glass so wet that the water drips from it. Have plenty of clean water and change it frequently. Dip the chamols in this and rub the panes, taking care that the corners are not forgotten. Wring the cloth tightly and go over the surface of the glass a second time. Then polish with the other wash leather.

They offer an agreeable change from heavier brass and wood articles used during the winter season.

A Dainty Collar.

To wear with colored linen dresses a sailor collar of sheerest mull is most effective.

It requires a half yard of material. After cutting the collar out finish the edge with an inch wide frill of finely plaited net.

Cuffs to match may be made with rounded or square corners and edged with the plaited net.

If a touch of color is desired a row of featherstitching where the net is joined to the collar supplies it.

CAMP COMFORTS.

Life in the Open Shorn of its Hardships.

Camping as a summer recreation has grown rapidly in popularity during the last few years and promises to enjoy greater favor this season than ever before. The reason is not far to seek. The material difficulties of camp life are being steadily eliminated, and life in the open has been shorn of most of its hardships.

Among the new devices for camp cookery are small aluminum bakers, saucepans and frying pans with handles to be removed for packing. Small fireless cookers are made especially for campers and are particularly useful when all day trips for fishing and hunting form part of the program, for on their return the hunters find a hot dinner ready for them.

Nests of cooking dishes are a trifle expensive, but well worth the outlay, as they can be packed in a minimum of space. Vacuum bottles are now much less expensive than they used to be and are invaluable to the camper. Water pails come in collapsible canvas, and of course there are plates and cups of paper, so inexpensive that they can be thrown away after using.

One camping party has provided itself with paper towels at a cost of 50 cents for 150 and calculates that they will save some bother about laundry work. Books of soap leaves are another suggestion.

In the matter of food for the camp inventive minds have been equally busy. There is a certain fascination about making coffee over a campfire, but the novelty soon wears off, and it is most convenient to be able to have a cup of coffee with only the trouble of boiling the water, powdered coffee doing the rest. A small round tin of the powder costs only 25 cents and will serve about thirty persons. Most campers try to arrange to get fresh milk from a nearby farm, but even if this supplied it is well to have condensed milk in reserve.

Hunters and fishermen sing the praises of "erbsumst," a fine powder from which a tempting soup can be made merely by adding water. It can be bought in all stores that handle sporting goods and probably also in large grocery stores.

coats with white skirts of linen or serge and white footwear. The outing skirt pictured is of white mohair and is short enough to reveal trim buttoned boots of snowy buckskin.

Three Rules to Follow.

In general there are three rules the housekeeper may use in changing her menus from winter to summer.

First—Make the diet to a larger extent vegetarian. Reduce the amount of meat.

Second—Do less cooking. Substitute green uncooked vegetables and fresh fruits for cooked ones. Serve fruits and cold desserts more.

Third—Make the diet more simple. This can be done without losing enthusiasm for "good things to eat," because there will be less work in the preparation of foods selected. Surely this privilege should be allowed in hot weather.

Flavored With Ginger.

A delicious white cake has the layers spread between with whipped cream flavored with Canton ginger cut into thin shavings, the icing being flavored in the same way. A little of the sirup in the ginger jar may be used in the icing in connection with the sliced ginger, and if a very pronounced flavor is desired slices of ginger may be stirred through the cake. A delicious dessert may be made by lining paper cases with this cake and filling the cup so formed with whipped cream flavored with ginger. Decorate the top with a piece of ginger.

ways that the working side is the wrong side of the finished lace, says the Modern Pricilla.

This dainty bonnet is melon shaped and made of three pieces of net embroidered in a dainty wallachian design and joined with lace insertion. The design comes stamped upon lawn, over which the net is basted and the embroidery done through both materials. When completed the lawn is cut away from under and the embroidered design left upon the net. If desired a silk lining may be added.

TEMPTING SWEETS.

Delicious Desserts For the Summer Menu.

One cupful of finely chopped figs, two and a half cupfuls of bread-crumbs, two-thirds of a cupful of chopped suet, one cupful of brown sugar, three eggs, half a cupful of milk, quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, half a cupful of cocoa and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract.

Mix in a basin the suet, figs, bread-crumbs, cocoa, sugar, salt, milk and vanilla extract, then add the eggs, well beaten. Mix thoroughly and pour into a buttered mold. Cover with a buttered paper and steam for three and a half hours.

Turn out and serve cold, decorated with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla extract.

Cocoa Ice Cream.—Two cupfuls of milk, one cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of cornstarch or arrowroot, four egg yolks, two cupfuls of cream or two cupfuls of milk and two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-fourth to half a cupful of cocoa, one teaspoonful of vanilla extract and three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt. Mix the cocoa, sugar and cornstarch or arrowroot, add scalded milk and cook twenty minutes in double boiler. Beat eggs, add cream or milk and butter. Pour on to this mixture cornstarch mixture, add vanilla and freeze. One cupful of raspberry juice added just before freezing gives a pleasant variety.

French Rice Pudding.—A quarter of a pound of ground rice, one pint of milk, three eggs, two heaping tablespoonfuls of sugar, one lemon rind, one heaping tablespoonful of butter, brown bread crumbs and three ounces of sultana raisins. Grind the rice in a coffee mill. Boil the milk slowly, sprinkle in ground rice. Boil till thick, six minutes. Remove and add sugar and butter. Mix well, cool a little, add eggs, well beaten. Stir and flavor with grated rind of half a lemon. Butter a plate mold, dust with toasted crumbs, pour in the pudding. Bake one hour in a moderate oven. Serve with lemon sauce.

Night and Morning Toothbrushes.

Night and morning toothbrushes are a novelty among lady's modern toilet articles. Each brush is built on different lines, one with an outward curving handle and brush and the other with inward curving ones. The difference in construction is said to be an important factor in freeing the teeth from all particles of food. Any escaping the one brush cannot escape the other, and by using both alternately it is said that absolutely no foreign substances can remain lodged between the teeth, no matter how close these may have grown together. The finest of bristles are used in the construction of these brushes, and the handles are carefully shaped to fit the hand.

To Test the Heat of an Oven.

Place a piece of white paper in the oven. If it burns immediately it is too hot for anything. If it turns a delicate brown it indicates pastry heat. For cake it should turn dark yellow. Light yellow shows the proper heat for biscuit and sponge cake.

For meats the oven may be not as hot. This keeps the juices in the meat.

THE INVALID'S DINNER.

Let the Meals Be a Series of Delicious Surprises.

It is surprising what a dainty little dinner will do for an invalid. The dinner must be served attractively, not on a tray, but on trays, in courses—a dinner which will gain in zest and novelty by being a series of surprises, the invalid not knowing just what is coming next. Heat a bouillon cup by allowing hot water to stand in it while heating the soup from a small can, to which add a shake from the celery salt bottle. Toast one cracker in the oven. Take the smallest tray, covered with a pretty dolly, and place on it the toasted cracker, laid on a dainty bread and butter plate, a thin tumbler of water, and then fill the vacant spaces with tiny bits of green vine or leaves from the house plants.

The next tray should be carried up and set outside the invalid's room, until the previous one is brought out. On it have a small platter containing what looks for all the world like a lilliputian turkey, beautifully browned, stuffed and garnished with parsley, but which is in reality a plump partridge or a squab. Have a small mold of currant jelly with this or one of cranberries and on a hot plate, covered, a slice of sweet potato that has been baked in the pan with a little "turkey" or a tiny ball of creamed white potato that has been browned in the oven and a spoonful of tomatoes that have been thoroughly cooked and seasoned with a bit of onion, southern fashion. It is really the likes of the invalid that need attention, and the prettiest sort of dinner can be served by the course system.

NEW NEEDLEWORK.

An Odd Use For the Much Used Irish Crochet.

Quite the newest use for Irish crochet is the picture frame, and, while it cannot be imagined that faces framed with hard cold white are given the most softened and artistic effect, still the idea is fascinating, if not to all beholders. At least the needlewoman who is ever on the alert for new turns for her deft fingers will welcome with delight the new path for her quickly moving needles.

These frames offer good opportunity for variation in edges and flower decorations which may be worked out in colors.

In a boudoir where all else has a touch of Irish crochet these little frames will fit in admirably.

Punched work is enjoying the top-notch of popularity just now and is being used on every conceivable article in household or wardrobe to which needlework is applied. Centerpieces show a legion of ways in which to use this much liked work in combination with solid embroidery. Counterpanes exhibit some wonderful effects in punched work; collar and cuff sets are much enriched and elaborated with the same style, and for children's and infants' accessories it is decidedly the thing.

The Beach Costume.

increased by a collar of white plique and white cotton buttons.

A white hat and veil and white buckskin buttoned boots complete a dainty morning beach costume.

To Improve the Neck.

An excellent exercise for expanding the chest and filling out the hollows of the neck and throat is to rise upon the tips of the toes at the moment of inhalation and hold the breath, throwing it forcibly against the muscles of throat and neck, while you can count fifteen; then exhale forcibly and come down upon the heels. Repeat ten times night and morning when there are no constricting bands about the body.

Finger Tips.

Don't cut the cuticle or any part of the flesh around the nails.

Don't polish the nails too highly. They should have only a natural gloss.

Don't file the nails to points, but carefully arch them.

Don't allow the nails to remain long, soiled with anything that will stain them.

Woman's World

What Women Are Doing.

Miss Mary M. Pillsbury is in charge of one of the most unusual libraries in the world. This library is in a small building on Mount Vernon street, Boston, and the books are lent to clergymen exclusively. The library is entirely religious and theological. The books are sent to any minister in any hamlet or city in any of the six New England states. Of the 7,000 ministers in New England more than 2,000 are regular patrons of the library.

The books appeal to all denominations. During the past year the Congregational and the Methodist borrowers numbered 600 each, the Baptists more than 300 and the Episcopalians more than 200. Two Lutherans take the books continuously, three Adventists and twelve Friends. Books on social questions are said to be by far the most in demand among ministers; next come biographies with works on pure theology near the bottom of a fairly long list.

Mrs. Scott Hopkins is the president of the Woman's Kansas Day club, through whose leadership a monument to the pioneers of the Santa Fe trail has just been erected at Great Bend, Kan. At their annual meeting in 1908 the members of the Day club decided to acquire Pawnee rock as a site for the proposed monument. One year later they presented the rock, with five acres of land about it and a road leading up to it, to the state. Pawnee rock is flanked by the old Santa Fe trail. It is fifty feet high, and the monument, which is a granite shaft of twenty-eight feet, surmounts the apex, being imbedded in the rock. The Day club was assisted in erecting this monument by the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Woman's Relief corps, the State Federation of Women's Clubs and the Women's Christian Temperance union.

The Extreme Suffragette.

Three Year Old—Mamma, I want some crackers and jam!

Mother—No, dearie; you can't have any more until Mrs. Pankhurst is out of jail.

Grown Son—This motorcoat of mine is a disgrace to the family. Guess I'll go out and look at some English tweeds.

Mother—English tweeds! Horror, Harold! You wouldn't be so disloyal! There's only one month to wait.

Grown Daughter—Mother, I saw a duck of a hand bag downtown today—London make. I think I'll buy it tomorrow.

Mother—Oh, my daughter! How can you give in so to your personal vanity while that martyr is suffering?

Father—But, see here, Mrs. Suffragette, I was just dicker for a swell set of dinner dishes for you—best English make. Your birthday comes next week.

Mother (wildly)—Give it to me for Christmas! I can't take it now. Maybe she'll be out of jail by then for good behavior.

Frills of the Mement.

CRADLE OF ROMANCE

QUEBEC IS CANADA'S HOME OF ANCIENT STORY.

The Charm of the Habitant Life in the Parishes Along the St. Lawrence Still Remains and the Tributary Rivers Are the Arteries of a Pastoral Country That Holds the Oldest Traditions in Dominion.

The charm of old Quebec, the only city in Canada with which several generations of British schoolboys have had definite associations, has been celebrated the world over, and glorious traditions of Wolfe and the Heights of Abraham antedated by many a long year the modern interest of the stay-at-home Englishman in Greater Britain, says Emily P. Weaver in Toronto Saturday Globe.

Old Quebec is the very cradle of romance in Canada's story, ever haunted by the shades of heroes, vanquished and vanquishing, but historically as well as politically, it is the capital of a wide district equally well known exploring, and the pilgrim who makes Champlain's old town his point of departure rather than his goal will end in knowing it more thoroughly than he who spends all his time amongst its markets and its monuments. In the country of the habitants there survives many an ancient custom that was once the fashion of the city also, and their past and present seem inextricably blended.

A variety of circumstances has conspired to lend charm to the old parishes by the St. Lawrence. The mighty river, with all its tributary system of smaller streams, does not, like a huge mountain, seem to set at naught the feeble powers of mankind. The river, in most of its moods, is gentle and companionable, aiding those who trust it alike in work and play, and the long lines of the villages on either bank tell how dear to the habitants is their noble stream. For miles below Quebec it gleams a broad silver ribbon in the green landscape, sending up white cloud-wreaths and fold on fold of purple mist to drape the adjacent mountains.

Down the long slopes of these mountains a multitude of streams (some of them no mean size) run to join the St. Lawrence. In their way they take many a mad leap over precipitous crags, and even now, when everywhere in Canada people are beginning to appreciate the immense possibilities of "waterpowers," it is easy, within a few miles of Quebec, to find falls which appear to be just as God made them.

Such a stream, "la Grande Rivière de Beaulieu," tumbles and scurries down from the great green mountain, named after St. Anne, "The Grand-mother-Saint," to lose its turbulence at last in the calm strength of the St. Lawrence. Some three or four miles below the falls it forces its way between two crags so close together that once, for a while (so runs the story), a foolish lumberman leaped once and back again across the white raging of this torrent. Since then a wider gateway for the waters and their frequent freight of logs has been made by blasting, but no one has thought it worth while to exploit the place as an attraction for the tourist, and so that much-maligned mortal has had the chance of seeing the Falls of St. Anne under much the same conditions as the early explorers saw them first three centuries ago. There is no way of descending the precipice, and, unless the visitor chooses to make a detour of many miles, he must content himself with seeing the falls either from the top or bottom, and, if he should decide on the latter as the best point of view, he has to cross and recross the river several times. When we were there it was so full of logs committed to its tender mercies by the lumbermen at work on the higher slopes of the mountain that for long stretches of its course there was no water to be seen, nothing, indeed, but logs striped bare of bark by their grinding, swirling journey down the stream.

Lower down, the logs were kept in check on their way to a little saw-mill by a boom, and just above the bridge which carries the road from Quebec over the Grande Rivière was a little space of open water, where children dabbled all morning like happy ducklings. Here also the little back-house dammed from a neighboring house brought their clothes on wash-day, thus turning it at in many households is a very "black Monday" into a function that was undeniably picturesque and probably pleasant. A huge iron kettle stood by the river's brink, and as the girls flitted hither and thither through the smoke and steam, stirring the contents of their pot and chanting snatches of gay French songs, they suggested a playful mimicry of the weird cookery and incantations of the witches in "Macbeth."

But the only witchery they could pretend to was the witchery of bright eyes and youthful grace and gaiety, and I fear the little maids sometimes found life a weary round of scrubbing, cooking and cleaning, for "Madame," their relative and guardian, aimed at an exacting ideal of cleanliness, and grew sometimes alarmingly valuable over the domestic arrangements of her quaint establishment.

Everywhere, inside the house and out, were evidences of extraordinary industry and neatness. Beside the woodpile not a chip was allowed to waste, not a weed was permitted to show its head. The garden brought forth the things it should, and never an interloper.

To the wanderer from some great, noisy, bustling town it seems, however, that the habitant country is the very home of rest and calm and peace, and for a season its soft, old-world dreaminess is full of charm for those accustomed to a more bracing atmosphere.

MUSIC IN WEST.

The Art of Song Is Being Developed Wonderfully on the Prairies.

The yearly festival and competition of the Saskatchewan Musical Association was held in Moosejaw a few weeks ago. For three days Moosejaw was filled with music. The evening of the third day a chorus of 500, with three soloists and an orchestra, gave Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," which was inspiringly done. The competitions and concerts were given in Zion Methodist Church. The program was carried out so well by the Moosejaw people that the executive for the song fest of 1913 adopted the whole system.

Music is progressing as fast as wheat acreage or real estate values, when every year in each of the western provinces can be held a festival such as for three days was given in Moosejaw. There is much musical talent in the West.

Just for instance, take Weyburn, known formerly for elevators and wheat. Weyburn filled fourteen of the hundred and thirty entries in the festival, and captured half a dozen medals. Indian Head, of the experimental farms, is the home of the best 12-voice choir in Saskatchewan. And all the province knows that Spalding, Wolsley and Zealandia are on the musical map, and may become art centres, for their voices were heard at Moosejaw.

There seems to be no reason why the talent brought out by the yearly festivals could not be organized on a still more effective basis by an inter-provincial league tournament which might assemble in one festival all the medalists in the three provincial contests. In this way larger works could be performed and the standard of music in the West put upon a more general developmental basis. Of course a scheme of this magnitude would require government assistance; of which as a phase of popular education in the most democratic of the arts it is well and highly worth. Besides this, such a scheme would be at least a very dignified and quite uncommercial form of publicity. A great deal of the musical talent in the West came from Great Britain; much of it from Eastern Canada. In a country so remote from touring aggregations of music, the people must depend more upon local talent. The result has been very much more rapid musical progress in the West than ever took place in the East. The Provincial Festivals are a result; of that and of a very marked interest in music on the part of the public.

The Saskatchewan festival helps to prove that, wherever a worthy musical program is given, the public will not be backward in supporting the venture.

Some Census Facts.

Some additional details respecting the Dominion census are set forth in a blue book just issued.

The largest gain in the period of forty years was made by Montreal, being 355,480; the second largest by Toronto, being 317,538; the third largest by Winnipeg, being 135,794. Vancouver's growth was 100,401 in less than thirty years.

Males totaled 3,821,067, and females 3,383,771. Males, single, numbered 2,369,160, and females, single, 1,941,514. Males, married, were 1,331,564, and females, married, 1,251,192. Widowers totaled 89,121, and widows 179,598.

Divorces numbered 1,630. Comparing the four first classes by percentages of population in 1871 and 1911, males increased during the 40 years by 2,655,756, and females by 1,662,321; single males by 1,185,373 and single females by 842,183; married males by 788,327 and married females by 708,843; widowed males by 61,634 and widowed females by 99,703.

The number of occupied dwellings in the sub-districts of the Dominion in 1911, was 1,413,913, and the number of families 1,488,353, compared with 1,028,892 dwellings and 1,070,747 families in 1901.

The average number of persons per dwelling in 1911 was 5.096, and per family, 4.84, compared with averages of 5.220 per dwelling and 5.016 per family in 1901.

Church Should Foster Sports.

The church is urged in a recent issue of the Christian Guardian to do her share in purifying Canada's national sports. The church should lay its hands more than it has hitherto done upon the national sports, observes the writer. "In only too many cases the church seems to consider that its mission is rather to discourage sports, and there is a lurking suspicion that the devil is always extra big in a healthy and robust body. The saints are supposed to be anemic and solemn, and godliness and laughter are esteemed irreconcilable. Most thoughtful men, however, have come to recognize that the gymnasium and the athletic field are national necessities, and in all planning for young men's work to-day they are provided for. But so far only a few churches seem to have had courage or ambition enough to deal with this matter. And yet this seems to be one way in which the church can help materially in national upbuilding."

Ontario's Mineral Output.

The returns of the Ontario Bureau of Mines for the first three months of this year show that the mineral output of the province was increased over the corresponding period of the preceding year, with one exception—gold. Silver, nickel, copper and pig iron all showed a substantial gain, while the output of gold had a falling off to the amount of $13,274.

THE LAW IN GERMANY.

One May Break It at Times by Laughing at a Funny Story.

German law is very different from English law. How different it requires a visit to Germany to realize. Before you have stayed in a German town for a week, a policeman calls. He politely inquires your age, your nationality and how long you intend to stay. Your answer he notes down in one of a small library of little books which he carries with him.

If you take a house in Germany you must notify the police. If you move to another you must comply with the same formality. If you hire a servant girl you must purchase a yellow blank and report the fact. When she leaves, a green form must be sent to the police stating why she is dismissed.

If you use the telephone in Germany you must be careful how you speak to the employees. At Karlsruhe a gentleman, impatient at long delay, called out, "Are you asleep, miss?" and was fined $5 for offering "an unjustifiable insult."

Whatever you do, be careful not to use red ink when writing to the police. The president of the Social Democrat Society at Hetschendorf did so and was summoned and fined for "insulting the representatives of law to break the peace."

In all small matters you must exercise the greatest care, so as not to run the risk of insulting other people. A certain Count von Friedland had a quarrel with an insurance agent named Joseph Bock.

The count, presently summoned the latter because, as he alleged, the agent stared at him, whenever they met in a manner which "revealed hate and contempt." Poor Bock was found guilty and fined $10, with the alternative of ten days' imprisonment.

A Berlin ironworker named Willeck got into trouble one day in a manner incredible to English ideas. He was watching a fat policeman chase a riotous merry-maker, and the vision of the former's stout legs twinkling along amused him so that he burst into a fit of laughter. This was construed as an indecent offense—seriously so—and the unhappy Willeck went to prison for a week.

The proprietor of a widely known patent medicine took a quarter of a column in a German newspaper. The publisher was summoned and fined for "bombastic advertisement." It was considered that the advertisement was too long and that it irritated the readers.

A German soldier was recently hauled up for the serious offense of failing to salute his officer in the street. For this the punishment is two months' imprisonment. He pleaded that he was shortsighted and at once was sentenced to an extra fortnight's confinement for failing to report his affliction.

Old London Street Cries.

Among the street cries which have disappeared is the early morning cry of "Hot rolls!" The modern baker lets us sleep in peace. But the streets of London a hundred years ago must have been noisy. Mr. F. W. Hackwood, in "The Good Old Times," recalls the old cries. "Some of these would sound strange to the ear now, as 'Bannocks,' 'Baskets,' 'Buy a broom,' 'Brick dust,' 'Sand O,' 'Belters to mend,' 'Chairs to mend,' 'Bill of the play.' More familiar perhaps were 'Old clothes,' 'Cats and dogs' meat' and 'Dust O.' And the postman of three days rang his bell. There is still a man who sits mending chairs in the Earl's Court road. But he has forgotten the cry.—London Spectator.

Twice Flattered.

One must be a genius to be a successful barber. One is reminded of the tonsorial artist who operated in the same village for fifty years and never made a mistake. In his early days a handsome boy got in his chair.

"Shave, sir?" asked the barber. "You flatter me," laughed the youth. "You flatter me. No; I can only use a hair cut."

Years passed—in fact, thirty years did. The same man came to the same barber.

"Hair cut, sir?" asked the barber. "You flatter me," sighed the man. "No—only a shave."

The Lion's Share.

"The lion's share" embodied the sarcasm of old Aesop, in whose fable, at the conclusion of their joint feast, the animals announce their wish to divide the booty, the lion claiming one-quarter by reason of kingly prerogative, one-quarter for his superior courage, one-quarter for his dam and cubs. "As for the fourth quarter," said the lion, "let who will dare dispute it with me."

More Terrible Than Lions.

Miss Tacanese, a lady lion tamer of Jassy, in Roumania, fainted in the cage at a moment when the animals were perfectly quiet. She was removed before they did more than show signs of restlessness and on recovering consciousness exclaimed: "Until the beetle crawling on one of the bars is taken off I am not going in again!"

Aluminium Powder.

To make aluminium powder very thin foil is first cut up into small spangles. These are ground in a mill, and the powder is then sifted through bolting cloth. The powder is used as a basis for metallic paint and is especially valuable for metallic surfaces that are exposed to a great deal. The powder is very soft and adhesive like graphite.

QUEER SLEEPING CAGES.

How Would You Like a Berth on the "Ship of the Desert?"

Camel cradles are not designed for rocking young camels to sleep, but they are a contrivance by which travelers in the desert may journey by night and yet not lose all sleep. Mr. Lansell in his book of travels describes them in an entertaining way in telling how he journeyed by camel train from Khiva to the Caspian.

"About 7 o'clock all was in readiness, and we were to get into our queer sleeping cages. Let the reader imagine two narrow wooden crates, such as earthenware is packed in, each sufficiently large for a man to lie in when twisted to the shape of the letter S, and let him further imagine them suspended on either side of the huge hump of a kneeling camel.

"This, I am given to understand, is to be my sleeping place for the night, and I accordingly choose my berth on the port side of the 'ship of the desert,' first putting into the cradle for a lining a piece of felt and then two pillows. Then I put on over my ordinary suit my jacked lined coat, enveloping me from head to foot, over that my ulster, and on my head a sheepskin hat, to say nothing of furskin boots, and then, getting into the cradle, I cover my feet with my sheepskin rug.

"And now comes the tug of war. Nazar asks are we ready, bids us hold on and says to the camel 'Chu!' whereupon the animal gets up leisurely, first by its hind legs, and in so doing raises our feet to the angle of 60 degrees, thereby threatening to pitch us out bodily.

"We hold on, however, for dear life, and then comes a lurch from the fore, lifting our heads once more to the horizontal. The fear of danger is now past, but it is not easy at first to get accustomed to the strange motion caused by the long strides of the camel.

"When the creature was urged to go quickly the nearest simile for the cradle I can think of is that of a bottle of medicine in the process of being 'well shaken before taken,' but when the camel walked leisurely, by then one lay as in a boat idly tossed by the billows and sleep became possible, just as it is in a Russian tarantula, when one is dead tired, cramped and 'used to it.'"

Europe's Oldest Actor.

Herr Bernhard Baumeister recently celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his joining the Imperial Court theatre of Vienna. This is believed to be a record for any player, and as Baumeister is now eighty-four years old and still plays regularly on the same stage he is believed to hold the double distinction of being the oldest actor in Europe and the one who has played the longest at one and the same theatre. He appeared in the evening of his anniversary as Falstaff, in "Henry IV.," one of his most famous parts, and received a tremendous ovation, in return for which he delivered a speech of thanks. The Emperor, who is two years Baumeister's junior, sent him a special message of congratulation and promised a pension for life to his wife, a comparatively young woman, whom the aged actor married only two years ago.

The Mysterious Handful.

A group of wandering musicians were playing before a Swiss hotel. At the end of the performance one of the members left the group, approached the leader of the band and pulled out a little paper box which he emptied into his left hand while the eyes of the leader followed every movement. He then took a plate in his right hand, passed it round, and a large sum was collected, every one meanwhile wondering what he held in his left hand.

"Why, it's very simple," said the leader when questioned. "We are all subject to temptation and to be sure of the fidelity of our collector he has to hold five flies in his left hand, and we count these when he returns to make sure of the money."

Leap Year's Names.

Leap year, it has been complained by some one, seems to have been named on the same principle as the "Meeting of the Waters" at Killarney, which is a place where two streams do not meet, but part. A leap year ought to be a year in which we jump over a day, a 364 day year. One explanation is that all the days of Feb. 29 jump forward one day in the week more than usual. The Romans used to call it a bissextile year, and the French still do so.

Drunkards in Holland.

In Holland special provision is made by law for the protection of intoxicated persons found wandering at large. A regular tariff has been drawn up, according to which a roisterer who can manage to walk is escorted home—within any reasonable distance—for 15 cents. Should a portable chair be required 36 cents extra is charged.

A Problem in Fractions.

A young wife was doing the marketing for her first dinner in her new home.

"Nice quarter of lamb, ma'am?" politely suggested the butcher. The young wife's face became wrinkled in thought. "But," she said, "there are only two of us! Don't you think an eighth would suffice."

The Truth.

"Mr. Hardup must have used a great deal of flattery to win the heir's."

"No; he simply told her the truth."

"Indeed?"

"Yes; he said he couldn't live with out her."

A Busy Hen.

A record has been created by a Hensfield fowl which in eight and half years has laid 1,400 eggs. It leaves the hatching to less distinguished hens.

HOW TO BEAUTIFY A PORCH.

A List of Good Climbers For Your Selection.

Nature uses vines to hide her defects. Man has borrowed the practice, which is to his credit. Nature hides tree stumps and rock heaps under festoons of shimmering green. Outbuildings, unpainted fences and rubbish heaps may be hidden in the same way. Many climbing vines are beautiful in leaf and flower. Grown over trellises, porches and arbors, they provide shelter and shade.

The list of really good climbers is not overlong. For permanent locations, perennials are preferable, and among the most common is the Virginia creeper, or woodbine, which grows very rapidly and will cling to walls of any kind. In the fall the leaves turn a brilliant scarlet or crimson. The plants are cheap. Fifteen cents will buy one.

The trumpet creeper and the wistaria are also good vines to grow over buildings. The former has splendid dark red, trumpet-like blossoms, which last a long time. This plant is not a very rapid grower, but is well worth planting. The grandiflora variety is the one to order. The wistaria makes the finest show of any of the vines. The vines grow to an immense height, but the plant needs a little petting. Give it a sunny location, strong soil and an occasional enrichment of manure, and it will delight your heart.

For a dense screen there is nothing better than Dutchman's pipe, which has leaves almost as large as elephants' ears. The curious little flowers, which really amount to little, give it its name. The leaves come early and stay late, a fact which recommends it for many situations. It must be grown on a trellis or given a support of some kind.

Momus, the God of Mockery.

Momus in Greek fable was the god of mockery and satire, who delighted in finding fault with gods and men. He was chosen to act as judge when there was a strife between Neptune, Minerva and Vulcan for supremacy in artistic power. Neptune made a bull, Minerva a house and Vulcan a man. Momus declared that Neptune should have set his bull's horns farther forward for fighting purposes. He said that Minerva should have so constructed her house that it could be moved away from troublesome neighbors and that Vulcan should have made a window in the man's breast through which his thoughts could be seen. All were so annoyed at his criticisms that they turned him out of heaven, and soon after he died of vexation because he could find no fault in Venus, the goddess of love and beauty.

Heroic Breakfasts.

In the Elizabethan era heroic breakfasts were the order of the day. An early sixteenth century manuscript at Alwicks Castle gives the breakfast menus of the Percy family: "For my lord and lady during Lent, a loaf of bread in trenchers, two manchets, a quart of beer, a quart of wine, two pieces of salt fish, six bacon'd herring, four white herring or a dish of sprats. . . . Breakfast for the nursery, for my lady Margaret and Master Ingeram Percy, a manchet, a quart of beer, a dish of sprats and three white herring." At ordinary times my lord and lady breakfasted at 7 a.m. on half a chine of mutton or a chine of boiled beef, with the same amount of bread and liquors as in Lent; and the nursery consumed a manchet, a quart of beer and three mutton bones boiled.—London Standard.

Scotty and English Jokes.

Dean Swift said that it required a surgical operation upon a Scot to see the point of a joke. No doubt the celebrated wit referred to an English joke. A young Englishman at a party mostly composed of Scotsmen made several attempts to crack a joke, and, failing to evoke a smile from his companions, he became angry and exclaimed, "Why, it would take a gimlet to put a joke into the heads of you Scotchmen!"

One of them replied, "Aye, but the gimlet would need to be mair pointed than these jokes."

To Please Him.

Mrs. Ascum—But why do you buy such expensive things when you know your husband can't afford them?

Mrs. Wise—I just do it to please him.

Mrs. Ascum—To please him?

Mrs. Wise—Yes; there's nothing he likes better than a chance to have something to complain about to his own people and pose as a martyr.

His Police Experience.

"This isn't the first time that you have come into contact with the police," said the lawyer sternly to the witness.

"No, sir," was the reply.

"What, may I ask, was the result of your former encounter?"

"I awoke him. He had gone to sleep on his beat."

The Greek Stadium.

Stadium is from the Greek word meaning standard of length. It was the name given to the race course within which other athletic contests also took place. The length of the course was always 600 Greek feet straightaway. Though the length of the foot varied in different localities you may say that about nine of the course's lengths equalled one mile.

Starting the Tears.

"John," queried her husband's wife, "if some bold, bad man were to kidnap me would you offer a reward?"

"Certainly," replied the wife's husband. "I always reward those who do me a favor."—London Tit-Bits.

Hairpins.

There are fifteen manufacturers of hairpins listed in the London directory, but in almost every case the actual factory is located at or near Birmingham.

NEURALGIA.

The Way This Painful Nerve Trouble Should Be Treated.

A sufferer from neuralgia ought to seek the advice of a physician as soon as for no one but a physician can tell what causes the pain.

If the neuralgia is the "symptomatic" form, caused by some organic trouble, of which it is a symptom, treatment must be directed to the removal of the underlying disease. If, on the other hand, it is caused by functional disturbance, such as malnutrition, debility or anaemia, or is the result of exhausting illness, rheumatism or malaria, the treatment must aim at building up the general system.

Again, neuralgia may be what is called a "reflex" that is, a warning of something wrong in the adjacent parts. Then the region of the aching nerve must be searched for the cause. It may be a matter for the dentist, the oculist or the laryngologist. When the tooth has been filled, the eyes properly fitted with glasses or the nasal cavity attended to the neuralgia will promptly disappear.

Whatever the cause of the pain, the general treatment must correct any errors of daily life. The diet must be full and nourishing and contain enough both of fluids and of food. Many neurotic patients get enough of either of these elements. In some obstinate cases a complete rest in bed is most effective, especially if combined with a judicious and carefully watched diet.

Neuralgic patients often suffer from digestive disturbances, and if they are simply told to eat more food they are in danger of adding severe gastric disturbances to their other troubles. For this reason stubborn cases of neuralgia often improve if treated away from home at a good health resort, where they are under constant supervision.

In these places, also, other forms of relief, such as hydrotherapy and electricity, can conveniently be used. When the case is severe enough to call for drugs the constant oversight of the physician is essential. Narcotics should be used only as a last resort, and the patient should never administer them to himself.

How to Keep Cool.

Don't hurry and don't worry.

Touch no alcohol. Use less tobacco than usual. Neither is wise in heat.

Don't do anything you can postpone. The peril of the battlefield is about.

Walk slowly in the sun. If you have to work in it keep green leaves in your hat. They may save a stroke.

A woman forced to walk in the sun is wise if she carries an umbrella or a sunshade. Women are less liable to a stroke and more liable to heat exhaustion. The latter scales less at the time. It means as much in the end.

Put off washing, ironing, baking and every work that can be postponed that brings heat. If called to such work, eat slowly and lightly, but often, and help perspiration by taking—much water, either hot or weak tea or just plain, good water, not too cold.

Loosen all clothing, go to bed early, sleep in the open if you can, best of all on the roof. A back yard and hammock are better than a room. Watch all food. Touch nothing kept long. Be vigilant over the milk children use.

And, above all things, be cheerful.

Ran the Hole Out of Town.

A lecturer once told of a Russian he saw some years ago in Manchuria whose methods of achieving results were not according to the usual code. The Russian had a well in his front yard which he concluded to fill up. He began digging a hole by the side of the well, throwing the dirt from the new excavation into the well. "In the course of time," said the speaker, "the old well was filled, but there was a hole alongside as big as the first. The Russian went farther away and dug another hole to fill the second. He continued this process of digging one hole to fill the other until he literally ran the hole out of town."

How to Darn a Tear.

Mend a long tear in any garment which will not be subjected to close scrutiny by putting underneath the break a piece of some strong fabric. Machine stitch on the inside down each edge, then turn the needle to the middle and zigzag across the tear. This makes a perfectly firm as well as a very neat mend. For the hard worn places on a small boy's pants it is the best possible treatment, strengthening a thin place as well as mending it.

The Putrid Sea.

There is a body of water called the Putrid or Putrefied Sea. It is really a lagoon on the east coast of the Crimea, separated from the sea of Azov by a narrow sand bar called the tongue of Arabat. The lagoon is sixty-eight miles long, varying in width from two to fourteen miles. The water is very shallow, stagnant and exceedingly salt.

Power of the Eys.

No matter how the breezes blow on deck, the ocean traveler if gowned in the knitted costume illustrated will be comfortable as well as smartly attired. Helpful Hints For Homes.

To take away the oily taste when using oil for frying make the oil very hot and then fry a piece of onion in it and when brown take it out.

When darning stockings run a thread round each hole before beginning and draw until the edges run flat. This makes the hole appear smaller, and it will be much easier to mend.

Scalds or burns can be cured by applying oatmeal and cold water. The cooling qualities of the meal help to draw out the fire from the burn, while its soothing properties heal it.

A simple and excellent way to remove dirty marks from a raincoat is to cut a raw potato in slices and rub it well on the marks. It will also remove mud stains from dress skirts, children's coats and gentlemen's trousers.

Now is the time when housewives should be thinking about a stock of herbs for winter use. The best plan is to dry the cut herbs in the sun, the plants being laid on sheets of paper or in trays. When this is not possible they may be dried in front of the fire or in the oven.

In Case of Fire.

The gas jets of small city rooms are often placed near a window, and fire have been started through the curtains being blown toward them. To obviate this danger sew several small weights in the lower seam of such curtains to hold them down or at least to prevent them from flying high with every breeze.

'MARVELOUS' CURES OF SKIN ERUPTION

Four Children Constantly Scratching. Nearly Tore Limbs Off. Cured in a Month by Cuticura Soap and Ointment

"Two of my daughters and two of my sons were suffering from very bad heads, the doctor ordering my daughters to have all their hair cut off so as to prevent it from spreading all over their heads, and to get to the seat of the trouble in order to be able to rub some ointment, which he gave them, well into the sores. These sores started in small patches which got larger and larger and then burst and spread all over their heads, and in some cases down their backs and bodies. The doctor said it was eczema, but they seemed to be daily getting worse. The sores formed like little blisters, then filled with matter, and looked like abscesses. They became all inflamed and irritated, causing them to be constantly scratching themselves. This made the sores burst, and the matter flowed all over their heads. We had to cut their finger nails and at times to put gloves on their hands. The blisters would be literally covered with blood."

"The teachers would not let them attend school for fear of infection spreading among the other children, so I resolved to try the Cuticura Remedies, which I found to benefit my children greatly. I continued with the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment for one month, and the result is a marvelous cure." (Signed) George Arthur Robinson, 27, Franklin St., Hingham, Mass., U. S. A.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with full directions, will be sent free on application to Potter D. & C. Corp., 46 Columbus Ave., Boston, U. S. A.

THE STREET CAR GIRL.

SHE'S always just across from me, dressed in the latest style. Her face is bright and comely too. With a bewitching smile. Sometimes she winks right saucily. Again 'tis plain to see That she's demure, this pretty girl Across the car from me.

When I am hanging to a strap And twining aches endure She sympathetically says, "Try Limbore's Pain Cure." She's always giving me advice. This dimpled, smiling girl. Just yesterday she said, "Blank's oil Will keep your hair in curl."

Each morning when I ride downtown My face she shyly notes And whispers, "Finest breakfast dish is Gooden's Busted Oats." I had to blush, though, yesterday— I did not understand— She said: "Wear Squeezem's corset. It Gives you a figure grand."

One day she tossed her head at me And said in a saucy way, "If you would know real happiness Drink Boozem's rock and rye. And many times she's told me when My eye she fairly caught— "Get married, but before you do Buy this nice house and lot."

She gives me good advice, and she is watchful of my ill. Quite frequently she warns me to "Take Curen's Liver Pills." Sometimes she's booming washing soap. Sometimes it's fruit that's canned. And once she faced me boldly with A plaster in her hand!

She always has a smile for me. But I sit like a chump And try to look polite when she Begs me to "see that hump." Sometimes she cooks. You'd never think "The work for her was hard. But nothing's tiresome for the girl Upon the street car card."

Aptly Expressed.

Out on the east side of the city lives a woman who has known Kansas City from the days when it was but a steamboat landing for westbound freighters. In her life she has known many ups and downs and has noted well the changed fortunes of others. Like many other noble women who came west in the pioneer days, she had but little schooling save in the ways of the world, and her speech is faulty. For all that her thoughts ring true.

A Yorkshire farmer was paid by check for some cattle he had sold. It was the first time that he had ever happened.

"What's this?" he said. "Why, money for the beasts," said the cattle dealer.

The farmer stared and had to be assured that if he took it to the bank they would give him gold for it.

"Well," said he, "Aw'll try, but if it's a wrong 'un thou'll hear about it."

The check was cashed, of course, and the farmer went home happy, but he could not sleep. He had seen a wonderful thing, and it had excited him. As soon as day broke he made for the cattle dealer's house and woke the dealer.

Jones' Legacy

When Jones' rich grandmother passed away there was a boom on Jones. All his poverty-stricken friends rallied about him with words of cheer and comfort, but Jones remained sad and dejected, and nothing they could say brought solace to him.

Come, come, said Smith, kindly, it's the way of the world.

Jones buried his head deep in his hands.

We must all die some-time, philosophized Robinson.

Jones shed a bitter tear.

She left a last will and testament, I suppose? murmured Jenkins, carelessly.

Oh, yes, said Jones, raising his head at last; she left a will and testament.

Ah, chimed in Brown, you were always a friend of hers. Of course your name was mentioned?

Yes, answered Jones, bursting into a fresh flood of tears, my name was mentioned. Boys—I am to have—

They hung expectant while more sobs choked his words. I am to have the Testament.

No More Smiling.

The new vicar was paying a visit amongst the patients in the local hospital. When he entered ward No. 2 he came across a pale-looking young man lying in a cot, heavily swathed in bandages. There he stopped, and after administering a few words of comfort to the unfortunate sufferer, he remarked, in cheering tones:

Never mind, my man, you'll soon be all right. Keep on smiling; that's the way of the world.

I'll never smile again, replied the youth sadly.

Rubbish! ejaculated the vicar.

There ain't no rubbish about it, exclaimed the other heatedly. It's through smiling at another fellow's grin that I'm here now.

Canada's Cry for Children

It will come as a surprise to many people to know that in Great Britain there are no fewer than 350,000 children who knew no other parentage than that exercised by the State or by charitable institutions, while there are in Canada many people who would be only too glad to adopt such little ones.

This class of immigration not only relieves the burden on the British taxpayer, but it sends to the Dominion newcomers whose general ideas are a pipette condition and who can, more readily than those of older years, be influenced along Canadian lines to become Canadian citizens.

It has been estimated that Great Britain could save a million sterling by sending to Canada 10,000 children of discretionary age to become valuable citizens. Canada last year made application for 18,000 British children, but on account of lack of funds, fewer than 3,000 were sent out. The cost of transporting these children would be far less than keeping them in public institutions.

Do you believe that we ever show our real bent when we are children? asked Binks of the genial philosopher.

Yes, said the genial philosopher. I know a barber in this town who, at the age of ten, was the most disagreeable little shaver you ever saw, and always mixed up in some kind of a bad scrape.

A volunteer who had been a railway porter before the South African war, on his return resumed his duties, and on being asked one day by a traveller if he noticed any changes since he left, replied—

The Scorer's Paradise

Village cricket is not generally a slow game but the match between the Pudmore Slackers and the Stopton Smashers was the exception which proved the rule.

Two of the former team had been in for about three-quarters of an hour and not a solitary run had been notched. It was a fine exhibition of how not to play cricket.

At last one of the pair, more by accident than design, made a hit that very nearly resulted in a run being scored.

Perisiva crowd came from the ever-widening chow of onlookers, and when they died down the voice of the local butcher, who was by way of being a wit, was heard to remark:

Steady, there—steady! Keep your heads! If you get so reckless we shall have to wake the scorer!

TONIC TREATMENT FOR THE STOMACH

The Modern Method Most Successful in Treating Indigestion

The old fashioned methods of treating indigestion and stomach troubles are being discarded. The trouble with the old fashioned methods was that when the treatment was stopped the trouble returned in an aggravated form.

The modern method of curing indigestion and other stomach troubles is to tone up the stomach to do its normal work. Every step toward recovery is a step gained, not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas—all are steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a tonic medicine, every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs, and is therefore the very best remedy for chronic cases of stomach trouble. The success of the treatment is proved by thousands of cases like the following: Mr. W. W. Swain, Grand Valley, Ont., says:—

"For several years my mother had stomach trouble from which she got no relief whatever until she began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She was treated at different times by three doctors, but their efforts did not avail. Then she was advised to try an electric belt, but it proved worthless. She suffered much during this time and food became distasteful. The trouble also affected her nerves and her general health was on the verge of a breakdown. One day a friend who was in asked her to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Without very much delay the Pills would prove successful when other medicines had failed, we nevertheless got her a supply. In a few weeks we could see a decided change, and got six more boxes, by the time these were used mother was almost well, and she kept on taking the Pills for a short time longer and was completely cured. She is now a healthy and strong woman and is never bothered with her stomach in any way. I hope this statement will bring relief to other sufferers."

Why experiment with medicines of doubtful value, when you have such positive evidence of the benefit following the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills? Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GRAIN

The surest and most satisfactory way in which the Western farmer can secure for himself the full value of his grain, is to ship it by the carload in bulk to Port William or Port Arthur, and employ a reliable and experienced grain commission firm in the Winnipeg market to look after and dispose of it. We are old established and widely known over Western Canada in this branch of the grain trade. We act as farmers' agents and handle strictly on commission, and are not open to buy the farmers' grain on our own account. We make liberal advances on car bills of lading, supervise the grading of cars, obtain the highest prices going at time of sale, and make prompt returns when sold.

We invite farmers to write to us for shipping instructions and market information. We give as references to our reliability, efficiency and financial standing any city or country bank manager in Western Canada.

GRAIN COMMISSION MERCHANTS, 701-703 F. GRAIN EXCHANGE WINNIPEG, CANADA

A celebrated engineer, being examined at a trial where both the Judge and counsel tried in vain to browbeat him, made use in his evidence of the expression, "the creative power of a mechanic," on which the Judge rather lightly asked him what he meant by the creative power of a mechanic. Why, my lord said the engineer, I mean that power which enables a man to convert a goat's tail into a Judge's wig.

What is that dog barking at? asked a top, whose boots were more polished than his ideas. Why, said a bystander, he sees another puppy in your boots.

The famous criminal lawyer had won a shockingly bad case by eloquence and trickery, and a rival lawyer said to him, bitterly—

Is there any case so low, so foul, so vilely crooked and shameful that you'd refuse it?

Well, I don't know, the other answered, with a smile. What have you been doing, now?

My husband is too tender-hearted altogether: to get on, said Mrs. Muggins, dolefully—It shows his good points, certainly. Why, he won't even speak a cross word to me, nor whip the children, nor even kill a fly.

Oh, that's nothing, said Mrs. Bug-rins, my husband is so tender-hearted that he can't even beat a carpet.

Impatient Young Man (at telephone) That's you, isn't it, Mary? This is the third time I've tried to get you.

Soft Voice—Why, Jack, you've never really tried to get me at all.

Wonderful Cures Reported in Germany.

The use of simple herbs as remedies instead of the more concentrated and usually more dangerous inorganic substances, has been revived very widely of late. In Germany a new school of physicians has arisen which throws out almost a whole of the pharmacopoeia and relies on an adaptation of the method of wild animals in curing themselves. . . . N. Y. World.

It was Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., who first advocated the extended use of some of our native roots, such as: Golden seal and Oregon grape root, mandrake and queen's root, black cherrybark. These are the chief ingredients in Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which has been so well and favorably known for nearly half a century. A harmless cleanser and stomach tonic that nature has provided.

J. DONALD MATHERSON of Ossining, N. Y. says: "I suffered for over five years with what the doctors told me was dilated condition of the stomach, associated with a catarrhal condition of esome, and nervous heart. I had tried enough nur, bismuth, gentian, rhubarb, etc., to float a ship and naturally thought there was no cure for me, but after reading what eminent doctors said of the curative qualities of the ingredients of 'Golden Medical Discovery' I gave it a fair trial. Took the 'Discovery' and also the 'Pleasant Pellets' and can truthfully say I am feeling better now than I have in years. I cheerfully give permission to print this testimonial, and if any 'doubting Thomas' writes me I will 'put him wise' to the best all-around medicine in the country to-day."

To clean white ostrich feathers make a solution of four ounces of white soap (cut small) and four quarts of rather hot water. Beat this into a lather with a paddle or clean large spoon. Dip the feather in this and rub it gently, but well, for five or six minutes. Then wash in clear water as hot as the hands can bear and shake until dry.

FRANCE is Europe's banker. For a country to acquire that position, her people must be remarkably thrifty. The people of France are exceptionally so—they begin to save in their youth. No matter how small their income, a portion is regularly set apart for future need. In old age they enjoy the fruits of their thrift. They are a happy nation.

The opening of a savings account is the best way to acquire that habit of saving with which no ability to earn can insure you against possible misfortune.
